GREYHAWK RECEIVES TWO PROJECT OF THE YEAR AWARDS FROM CONSTRUCTION MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA

MOORESTOWN, NJ – GREYHAWK, an international construction project management and consulting firm, received two “Project of the Year” awards from the Mid-Atlantic Chapter of the Construction Management Association of America (CMAA). The awards were presented to GREYHAWK at CMAA’s annual awards event held recently at The Union League in Philadelphia.

GREYHAWK received the prestigious awards in recognition for its construction management efforts to successfully complete additions and renovations for the Lenape Regional High School project in the category of “K-12 Construction Over $20 million,” and construction of the new Woolwich Municipal Building, in the category of “Public Building Projects under $20 million.”

“We are so pleased that CMAA honored our firm with these highly coveted awards,” said Chuck Romanoli, COO, GREYHAWK. “The awards are a testament to our steadfast commitment to providing our clients with high quality construction management services on time and on budget.”

The CMAA is a national organization of more than 5,000 individual and corporate members that promotes professionalism and excellence in the management of the construction process. The CMAA’s Mid-Atlantic Chapter serves the organization’s members in Southern New Jersey, Delaware and Eastern Pennsylvania. For more information on the CMAA, visit www.cmaanet.org.
